Whig and Courier.

John B. Hayward, Editor.

FRIDAY, MAY 16, 1881.

Correspondence.

To the Editor of the Whig and Courier.

Washington, May 12.

This is emphatically a year of difference in Washington. In every section of the city, the hand of improvement is visible, in the demolition of old buildings and the erection of others more in accordance with the rapidly increasing population and business of the Capital. De-sides the large amount of Government building now going on, the long recess before us seems to have been seized upon by our own citizens to prepare for the coming Congressional campaign. The ring of the troy and the merry song of the hodman is heard on every square and under the hands of our skillful artisans we shall, no doubt, present to the view of our visitors next winter a sight of improved appearance.

The Monument now being erected in honor of the Father of his Country is gradually lifting its head to the skies, and bids fair in due time to realize the majestic conception of Mr.

Webster—to catch the earliest light of the morning and to retain the last lingering beams of the setting sun. It is now nearly one hundred feet in height, and will, when finished, measure 500 feet. The receipts—drawn from all sections of the country—largely exceed the expenditures. The management of the affair is both able and judicious, exhibiting neither extravagance on the one hand nor impotent parsimony on the other.

On Saturday last, a new paper called the "National Monument," made its appearance under the direction and patronage of the Washington Monument Board of Control, and is to be its organ and exponent. Mr. P., who was formerly our Charge d'Affaires, to Paris, is a gentleman distinguished for great learning and high personal worth, and will, no doubt, furnish a paper worthy of the patronage of his countrymen and of the noble cause to which it is to be an advocate. An edition of thirty thousand copies is to be printed, for general circulation—the second number to be issued in August, in order to give agents an opportunity to make their return. After deducting necessary expenses, the proceeds are to be devoted to the objects of the marble column, whose name it bears.

The proposed visit of our distinguished resident and his less distinguished Cabinet to the North, has elicited a general and, appen-dantly, movement on the part of the people in these sections of the country through which they will necessarily pass, to give them a reception at once due to the high station, the severely occupied and to the public manner in which their duties have been discharged, in times of great difficulty and toil. They will need all the sympathy and encouragement they can get to sustain them in the several months which they must, I fear, be doomed to pass, and it is well for them to have the economical means of effecting it to recruit their exhausted energies in the quiet pursuit of popular education and patriotism.

The recent intelligence from South Carolina of her mollified, lessened, is well calculated to awaken feelings of a painful nature. Not that, either physically, morally, or geographically, she is of any great importance to the Union, but because this movement on her part may be the prelude of the restoration of her to the part of Congress. I shall not believe, violate the truth of history which I say that no State of equal population, and area did less in the war of the Revolution to secure its favorable result, or that she is less ready to strengthen and support our institutions, or to illustrate their noble character and tendencies. From the first, she was, and has continued to be, the very hot-bed of treason, malice, and popular discontent, and her departure would be of little moment, and against our future, were it not for the pernicious effect of a bad precedent. In case she should pursue the path she now pursues to subvert her, it strikes me, would be to let her alone, to suffer her to fall by her own inebriation. The first gun fired by the Government would create a sympathy in her behalf on the part of thousands who would aid her against her. Treat her exactly as she has treated us, and she will be a foreign facility, without all Government support and interference from her, and she will inevitably be driven from her position, and her most valuable population, and leave her nothing but the desert and political darkness which appear to have fastened her economic.

In this region of country the general sentiment appears to be, as far as I have heard, in favor of, through the press and otherwise, in favor of active coercion at the proper time. It will be a grave and awful question, and one which will call for all the wisdom and prudence of the best and wisest of the age.

The South Carolina agitation.

The Washington correspondent of the Journal

Cambridge writes:—Mr. Pettigrew, the U. S.

District Attorney from South Carolina, is here and has been frequently with the President and Secretary of State, during the last few days.

Many persons who have the best opportunities of forming a judgment as to the results of the South Carolina agitation say that there will, ultimately, be a strong reaction in public sentiment there, against the extreme measures now urged.

Honors to the President.

At New York a splendid dinner was given to the President at the Irving House. Speeches were made by Attorney General Critchfield, Secretary of the Navy, and others. The President made a short speech before the Whig Committee dwelling chiefly on the Compromise measures.

The President and Mr. Webster were handsomely escorted by the most famous band.
